WHITMAN OPENS FIRE ON BANK DEPARTMENT; 20 BANKERS CALLED

Oakleigh Thorne, James G. Cannon, Bradley Martin and Le Roy W. Baldwin Among Those Served To-Day With Subpoenas.

The equivalent of twenty large loaded dynamite bombs was thrown into the banking district to-day by the District-Attorney in the shape of twenty subpoenas duces tecum requiring the recipients—all noted bankers—to appear before the Grand Jury next week in the Carnegie Trust investigation.

These subpoenas disclose that the Grand Jury is not only investigating the Carnegie Trust Company failure and the relation of city deposits to loans made by banks to the William J. Cummings coterie, but that the probe is going into the State Banking Department.

Accompanying each subpoena is a typewritten memorandum of subjects upon which the bankers subpoenaed are required to inform themselves in advance of their appearance to testify. The memorandum is in the shape of twenty-four searching questions relating to loans to the Cummings crowd and companies, city deposits and the relations of the banks controlled by the bankers under subpoena to the State Banking Department and to other State departments and to city and county branches of government.

The bankers will be required to tell if they have ever paid any money in the way of commissions or otherwise for city deposits, if they may ever make any payments to the State Banking Department or any bank examiners or other officers of the State or if they may ever note the disappearance of anything of value from their banks after an examination, and if so, how such a loss was covered up on the books.

Nothing to the nature of tax evasion has ever been found before in this or any other investigation. This is the first subpoena and the first complaint against the bankers to-day. The law is to demand and ascertain what exact and serious evidence there is to support the statement made by the prosecution that the Carnegie Trust officials engaged in the tax evasion generally reported by the coterie as well as in the various cases.

To George Hyde's Accounts.

The question as to tax evasion is raised now to reduce the possible amount of damages to be recovered by the court in the case.

There is no question that particular bankers' signatures, as far as understood, that Mr. Hyde has several personal bank accounts.

In issuing his subpoenas Mr. Whitman has not talked at entering the national banking field and invading the territory of the Comptroller of the Currency and the United States authorities generally.

Four of the banks involved are national banks.

On the District-Attorney's orders but to the bankers' six rights to the State Banking Department. The remaining concern, Cannons and Cannons Trust Company, the only name mentioned outside of those in the Cummings crowd and its partners, is that of the City Commissioners.

Cannons and his associates and officers are under criminal charges in grand juries. Some of the banks are fully aware of the fact that the National Bank of Canada, which has anti-trust bills at or near held by some of the offices.

MISS HELEN TAFT BECOMES MEMBER OF THE HELEN CLUB

MISS HELEN TAFT

CHICAGO, March 25.—Miss Helen Taft, the daughter of President Taft, has written her acceptance of an honorary membership in the Helen Club of Northwestern University. Her letter was read at a meeting last night in Willard Hall, Evanston. Five young women were initiated into the club, which is composed exclusively of women.

Proposed Often.

According to Miss Deutsch she was only seventeen years old then, and Dady showered her with his attentions. He sent her flowers and candy, and within two weeks after their meeting proposed marriage to her six times.

"I told him each time," said the young actress, "to wait until we returned to New York."

On Dec. 25, 1908, Miss Deutsch returned from Cuba, and she declared it was agreed she and Dady would marry the following year, when his work in Cuba would be completed. Soon after her arrival here, Miss Deutsch said, Dady began to write the many loving love letters upon which she hopes to recover money damages for her wounded heart.

MARRIED ANOTHER ACTRESS.

Miss Deutsch declared the first she knew of her lover's unfaithfulness was when she read in a New York newspaper in December, 1908, that he had married Miss Vera Campbell, then a member of "The Parisian Widows" company. This she said, was just one week after the date on which Dady had promised to marry her.

Miss Deutsch said she "phoned to young Dady as soon as she read the announcement of his marriage to Miss Campbell, thinking some mistake had been made."

"He admitted he was married," said Miss Deutsch, "but he told me he was sorry and said he didn't know why he had done it."

"He wanted Particulars."

The first intimation of the suit for breach of promise came to-day when it was learned that Justice Greenbaum has under consideration a motion by Dady to require Miss Deutsch to furnish a bill of particulars setting forth the time and place of the alleged promise also, whether or not it was in writing or oral.
